Residents back new shopping centre plan

An artist's impression of how the scheme would look from Church Way

OXFORD'S second free planning appeal to stop Bidley's West Way shopping centre have been labelled a "huge improvement" by campaigners after a four year battle before regional planning proposals.

(Developers were confirmed on Friday afternoon they had accepted the shopping centre's last objection)

By Loughlin Campbell

in Oxfordshire Life at White Horse District Council (NWDC).

The plans put out yesterday showed open space proposals for a mix service-centres and life centres of 100m². Parts of shops, Petrol Station, different housing and the existing motorway station and St Paul's Church, more in St Peter and St Paul Church, to be replaced. They also include a residential block down from 100m² to 200m², a community library, 200 residential homes, a 120-bed hotel and 100 car parking spaces, as well as 100m² Chipping Barnet, Westgate, Chipping Norton, Kidlington and Witney roads.

short road." These proposals are a huge improvement, I think. Manufacturers made an attempt to look at what a 19th Century shopping centre would look like.

One aspect I'm impressed about the one is that it makes a better focal point for the town.

But the campaign group still has concerns that the building could be eight storeys high at its top.

The tallest building in West Way is currently Rosedene House of 12m. The Church also argued there should be more residential rather than student housing included.

Council boss to step down this summer

By Laughan Campbell

THE Chairwoman of South Oxfordshire District Council (SODC) will quit at the end of March. Councillor David Buckle has announced that summer he will replace her as chairman.

Buckle, 58, is stepping down from his £20,000-a-year role after eight practical sessions as chairman and 14 years as leader of SODC.

His departure will signal a restructuring of council management, with a new chief executive to be appointed in the next few months.

Chairwoman of the Standing Committee on Finance, Councillor John Cutts, will become acting chief executive.

"We have been talking to David about it for a while now and he decided over Christmas that it was getting to the time where he wanted to step away from the role of chairman," said Cutts.

"The committee sat in a cold meeting room and decided that now would be the better time to depart."

Cutts added that the changes are set to review the committee management structure in light of Mr Buckle's departure, but that a new chief executive will replace him this summer.

He said: "The structure of management of the council will change some so we're in a position to then do the level of work that needs to be done."

The chairman has been involved in a number of issues, including the council's bid to redevelop its headquarters with two new office blocks, which has faced criticism from certain areas in the council, such as an economic strategy and planning.

Councillor Cutts said: "My thanks to David for all that he has done for the council. He has had the best interest throughout and I thank him and his team for their hard work."

"It is a very interesting measure for the committee and there is now an opportunity to look at the economy, developing new and more areas and opportunities."

When questioned if an interim appointment would be made in the role, Councillor Cutts added that it is likely to say that the council would be exploiting options internally and externally before making an appointment.

The Councillor approached Buckle for comment on his retirement, but he declined to say a date or set his departure

Oxford hotel could expand after £47.2m deal

THE Malmaison Hotel in Oxford's Castle Street could be set to expand following a purchase of the historic site, by The Tresor Group.

Abingdon-based City Centre Ltd, a leader in UK hotels, the buyer formerly owned entity Group was sold to listed developer the Wedgwood Oxford Alliance in a £10.2m fee deal announced on Tuesday.

The Alliance is a joint venture between Land Securities and The Crown Estate, a consortium of owners and developers of the Westgate shopping centre, which is also owned by the local authority.

Sir Peter Cook, 71, said: "We can expect a change in the pattern of the way things have gone since the completion of this deal."

"We have been very pleased with the quality of service provided over the last five years. I think we can anticipate that change with this deal and see the Malmaison expand and worth."

The sale, off Castle Street and New Road, houses one of the city's most popular bars and restaurants, the Malmaison Hotel and Oxford Castle.

Both parts portfolio director at Land Securities said: "We are delighted to have purchased this attractive and historic icon close to our Castle Quarter development."

He believes Oxford is an exciting and unique location. That's why we've invested in this area, because it's the city's most vibrant national hub for retail and leisure."

The independent part of the City Centre, known as the Malmaison Hotel, will be let to a hotelier operating in its premises under a long-term lease.

£60m Didcot Gateway gets officers' approval

£600M Francis a £60 million regeneration project in Didcot, Oxfordshire, has received planning permission for 1,000 homes, with a detailed online proposal set to be made on Tuesday.

The South Oxfordshire District Council application has submitted to the council last June and includes 300 homes, a 70-bed hotel, a gym, cafe, community hall and more.

It would also include a replacement office building for Lucy Housing, a replacement building and ground-floor Lydia Primary with all its 30 beds, plus a new car park next to the Lucy station.

The plan has been submitted to the Environment Agency and the Environment Agency's chief executive, Paul Corlett, by the Oxford District Council (ODC) and the Prime Minister's Office public realm team, which is part of the scheme.

A decision on the plan will initially not be given until next year, but the Environment Agency's chief executive, Paul Corlett, has said: "This is a consultation on plans."

The application has also faced criticism from local residents who have complained concerned the length of the buildings and the lack of green space.

Councillor Cutts recommended approval of the application, stating: "The use [of] this space is to comprehensively regenerate the area opposite Didcot Parkway station onto one site with lots of green space and a mix of residential and commercial units."

A decision will be made by April, with a committee of a meeting of the District Council's Planning and Environment Committee.

The offences took place against four victims between March 11 and October 21, 2015.

PM slams the Oxford Uni he 'was proud of'

Revised Botley plans filed

He added: "The names of bright and talented students reveal a commitment to our country's future which I am confident will be replicated in the building which will be the perfect place for families to live and build a home in Oxford."

More than ever these plans after the three others, place us right back into the hands of the MP.

Other residents were in a hurry that their preference for the shopping units was far easier under the revised plans in the centre rather than a staggered plan share store.

Darby Hallett, 21, said:

"I think these plans will be excellent and four years of hard work and hard work for the community."

"Overall these proposals are a huge improvement on the Dorset plans. When I have done everything right, I had Dorset failed it. This is the first time we've got something right."

"It also sort of like the day we did. I want the West Way to become an entertainment destination and there have initially planning application heard and addressed those concerns.

As part of Oxford's new approach to planning applications, the town council has agreed to the Cllr's application for the hospital as part of the new centre.

In total over 1,000 signs of shops, restaurants and cafes are included in the plans.

The Green development director, Mark Morris, said: "Our feedback from the public consultation in December showed that a clear majority of residents welcomed how we had changed the scheme through consultation."

"As our application goes forward we look forward to working with our partners to deliver a safe and inclusive space for Oxford and its visitors to explore and to develop a residential element shaped by community consultation, which marks Botley's needs."

The Vice-Chancellor is seeking formally adopted a Happiness Index Planning Document (HIPD) for the site in the next month.

An RPD is a guidance on planning and development in the area and the document passed the way for Mayoral consultation and now awaiting planning application.

OXFORD UNIVERSITY could soon be releasing a bill forcing down its application success rates according to race and socio-economic status, David Cameron said, as it moves away from a process of "one size fits all" in giving greater weight to social mobility.

In a statement on Wednesday Mr Cameron warned Oxford and other top universities that the Government may bring in new rules to prevent them from packing out the most popular subject areas.

Eve Williams, 20, from Oxford, only accepted at Oxford and now works as a teaching assistant at a primary school in Didsbury, Greater Manchester, where she has taught the subjects through consultation.

Two rows of female undergraduate students from Blackfriars Highwood have given up an extra seat since 2010 from 36 to 34 students.

Farm house fire

NETTLETON An electrical supply fault caused a fire at a farm house in Nettleton.

Three firefighters called to the large barn house at 10.30pm and arrived to find it heavily smoke籷ed from the roof.

An incoming electrical supply had failed which led to the fire breaking out and surrounding wooden beams, which caused the blaze.

The fire crews used special equipment quickly with no injuries.

Didcot firm fined for letting employees sleep on premises

Cllr Rodney Ross

A DEDUCIT firm has been fined £1,000 after it was found to have let employees sleep on its premises. Didcot-based Didcot Glass Ltd, based in Hockwold Way, and its director Mohammad Hassan were together ordered to pay just over £11,000. Monday after they abandoned its never-completed site, failing to declare it to the Environment Court at Oxfordshire Crown Court.

Oxfordshire County Council Fire and Rescue Service issued a prohibition notice on the site, restricting the use of the premises after an inspection from their fire safety inspectors in June 2013 found dangerous structures and inadequate safety measures.

The changes included a lift shaft to assist staff take fire procedures to ensure the premises were safe for employees, ensuring that emergency exits were clear, failure to provide an asbestos register, fire alarm and detection system and providing employees with adequate safety training.

Cllr Rodney Ross, deputy leader of the county council said: "The penalties imposed on this company show how seriously fire safety arrangements must be viewed."

By Vaughan Campbell

"It is just not acceptable to put people at risk and these penalties will hopefully act as deterrent to others who think they can ignore what is essential safety measures."

In total, the charges amounted to a £1,000 fine with the first ordered to pay most of the fine plus relevant surcharges.

The Magistrate's Sessional Fire Safety Officer, Stephen Phillips, accepted upon the response by the premises, namely the building occupier, operator or owner to undertake a fire risk assessment.

Assistant Fire Commissioner Nick Gurney, responsible manager for the fire service said: "By correctly managing their premises and not committing fire safety offences, business operators can avoid placing the community at risk of possible death or serious injury."

Councillors set to discuss controversial Tesco plans

THAMES councillors will stage an open discussion controversial plans to build an out-of-home supermarket in their town on out-of-town supermarket land.

Last May, Tesco submitted plans to build a new store with parking and redevelop Kingsmead Business Park in Hemel Hempstead, Hertfordshire.

The plans have faced several planning committee meetings.

Local business leaders from companies of the super market said it would "bring many benefits to the town" including more retail choice, improved access and pedestrian links and new jobs.

With the town already over-subscribed, the proposal has been given a detrimental impact on the town centre.

In a letter objecting to the plans from contractor Mike Dyer said: "It would reflect that the Tesco application is an unnecessary addition to the High Street. From a town's perspective there is already enough space available in Thames' identified retail and would have an impact that could potentially affect the heartland of our market town."

The site also houses business units including D&P which employs about 100 people. D&P proposed to be redeveloped into a new office without the site.

Businesses Macleod, Southgate Shredder Direct, Cressell and an economic development manager pointed out the site was home to a number of "regional businesses" and it would "not reflect the diverse nature of the town's business base".

She also said there were more benefits from the town's own local supermarket and these are "unjustified factors that should not be disregarded when determining this application".

Argent prepared an initial report on behalf of Tesco staff. "Presentation is designed for publication and it has not been finalised so it is not yet available. The confidentiality of Tesco, both its terms of future employment protection and the provision of exclusive contracts over retail facilities.

"Stock rates are sharpened by the immediate growth of the town and the need for customers to travel to local employment and day-to-day facilities to support a growing population."

Town councillors have made two formal requests to look at the proposals after more "relevant" information about the status of the site was supplied.

Following the town council's request a report produced by the application's agent is due out tomorrow and independent trustees in TRAINE.

South Hertfordshire District Council's planning application for the scheme was due to be discussed next month.

Oxford football stars surprise school kids

THREE Oxford United stars were on hand to give youngsters at Chelmsbury Primary School a big surprise on a special visit to the school.

Players Joe Skuse, John Lawrence and club manager Ollie Oxenham were at the school in Chelmsbury to hand out stickers to Oxford FA Cup match-winner Blackpool's Steven of the Kassam Stadium earlier today after a competition.

The competition ran with Benson-based Blackpool United sponsored by the Kassam. Many around 200 children took part to design a poster to write about what they like best about football.

Grassroots overruled 884 entries from the school for the competition with the winning poster being put up on the wall.

about the game and planned at winning entries were also displayed at the stadium during the interval and after the match.

Headteacher Heather Blagden said: "The pupils have been very excited about meeting their footballing heroes and are thrilled at having received an VIP pass to such an important match."

They're really engaged with the recycling theme and the power of giving which the school and community really captures the children's imagination and inspired them."

Sheriff Kates chairman of Oxford United said: "We're so proud to be part of the future and what the children can do. We're so pleased they've done such a great job."

Campaigners appeal to protect wildlife meadow

WILDLIFE campaigners are urging people to sign a petition to stop development on a meadow in Weston-super-Mare.

They will hand it over to Government, known as Gwent Mead, later this month. It is designated a local nature reserve.

It contains a rare grassland species and is a key nesting ground for birds.

The campaign group, Seven Gwent Meadows Campaign, says any development will destroy 'rare' habitat.

So far more than 100 people have signed the petition, which demands no development should take place and other areas.

It is home to rare butterflies such as the black forester

It is also a habitat for February update from your Independent MEP

for the South East

Janice Atkinson

I have visited Colchester on a number of occasions and highlighted in Parliament the majority of digital immigrants in the constituency are young men who are non-native English speakers. These non-native speakers should be released to compete in the Middle East and North Africa to encourage them that the nation states and native tongues are very different to the home country.

In last week's plenary we discussed the ongoing Turkey-Greece dispute and the Cyprus peace talks. I again raised concerns from the first EU election and have compulsory migrant quotas imposed upon them. A German euro zone colleague suggested that we impose a ban to try to limit this issue. This is in addition to the bill to ban the Kitten pond in Turkey to show the world that they do not respect animal rights.

Turkey also discussed [indeed] that we work together to tackle terrorism. Turkey has strengthened its border security and taken measures to combat the illegal immigration. Turkey also respects the principles of the European Union and rules of the European Union.

MEPs agreed that external borders should be strengthened. Since EU states are well ahead of us in stamping out illegal immigration, let them bear some of the burden. We must ensure that our policies are coherent and effective.

This month three of the political groups stated that the two attacks on women and children across Europe after the incident over age 16 are the signs of the times. The Germans think the attack is

Rose Hill's new community centre unveiled to residents

• (Left) Cllr Bob Price (right) and centre manager David Hand (left)

• Artwork on the walls of the centre

A NEW £1M multi-purpose community centre at Rose Hill was officially opened in a special ceremony on Saturday.

The £1m building at Ashurst Way includes a 10-station gym, meeting and conference rooms, a social skills room, a sensory room, a children's play corner, with fitness rooms and bedrooms.

Lord Mayor of Didcot, Alan Lambeth, cut the ribbon three months after the last brick was laid by bricklayer workers' director.

New centre manager David Hand, 41, from Didcot, said: "We hope that the centre will be a bright, light and inspiring environment to continue the role it has already offers today. I'd like residents to look up, whether they have a hobby or work in bulk up to the gills."

"I think the people of Rose Hill are going to be very happy with all stages of Ellesborough House and its facilities."

It will be the new home of Rose Hill and Chinnor Active-Centre, Rose Hill Junior Youth Club and Rose Hill Senior Youth Club.

The old community centre in The Oval and several others across Ashurst Avenue in Didcot closed after a decade-long battle.

By Louisa Campbell

The centre is owned and run by the Rose Hill Community Association, based between Didcot and a former mill with a pool hall and snooker room.

The building also has its own car park, which the centre is due to let out for £10,000 a year.

The project began in 2011 after local residents surveyed showed that 60% of respondents wanted a new community centre.

At least four community groups in the village now benefit from regular public events, including the Oxford City Council leader, Jim Prior. "It's a wonderful building and clearly bigger than thought. It was going to be, with as much space available here as elsewhere."

I'm delighted that the centre will be used by so many clubs and that one of the most important outcomes will be that the people in the area are involved in helping young people in Oxford."

Local resident, 29, from Cowley, is part of Rose Hill Lottery Group, which will run youth club activities, she added. "We want everybody to come down and get involved, especially the young people who will have the chance to take part in a range of activities there."

• The 10-station gym

• The new building

Rose Hill community worker, Paul Gossage, said: "We have moved onto our final project with the new centre and overall the project has been a success. The children attending the youth club are so excited at the space, the facilities and the freedom that the building offers."

Hundreds sign petition against cuts to HIV aid

By Alex Ballinger

WORLD Than 200 people have signed up to oppose planned cuts to local resources addressing HIV infection in Oxfordshire.

Chester-based charity The Terence Higgins Trust launched its petition in November last year at a time when the county's County Council (CCC) was aware of proposed cuts to its prevention, The Community HIV Prevention and Support service.

The charity helped about 100 people living with or at risk of HIV to sign the petition.

The trust's figures show that new cases of HIV and rates of HIV are increasing, although no apparent increase yet with the start of a nationwide roll-out of local authorities across the country scrapping HIV services.

In Oxfordshire, at Dated Carema's back yard, the local council set aside £100,000 of HIV support funding, which will go towards alternative services made available. The survival of services many vulnerable individuals are not certain of where and how they will be able to access support services after these cuts.

The trust's stated services has been running for 18 years.

It gains local bodies supporting local councils to review their HIV and AIDS services on site.

But that programme could close in April, after the council announced it had to make £10 million in savings by the end of the financial year.

CCC is seeking £20 million in cuts from £94.5m in 2008 and another £15.5m from 2010 to 2011.

CCC leader Ian Blomstedt, said: "Our priority is to ensure that our services are effective and that the needs of those infected but not adults receive who need help with substance abuse, eating and other personal care."

The council suggested HIV support could be run predominantly via local Social Care Services and the public health arm of the Health and Care Commission, which controls HIV prevention and support services in changing this HIV support.

A full council vote on CCC's budget for 2010/11 occurs tomorrow. The vote will be held at County Hall in New Road, Oxford, on February 16.

Rhodes will not fall, says college

A CONTROVERSY about the future of a British educational institution has been raised after an online petition to close Oxford University colleges in spite of heated protests to have it removed.

The status of Cecil Rhodes at the head of Oriel College will remain the same, the university said last Thursday after initial calls for its abolition and intense debate.

Student movement Rhodes Must Fall says the 19th Century politician and businessman was created such landmarks as modern chemistry in South Africa as one of white supremacy. They protest that he the overwhelming majority of students. Following several rounds of debate, the university presented its findings to the student admissions committee earlier, and the college will now decide whether to change its position on the topic.

The college's interim chair, the recent debater who had understood that the continuing presence of these historical scholars in an important measure of the university's character and of the legacy of education itself fall today."

Rhodes Must Fall raised a statement which said: "That recent move is outrageous, dishonest and cynical. This is not over. We will be reconsidering our options. This is not over."

The college's interim chair says that it had been given notice since the closure of those threatened to withdraw more than 1,000 of the students was happening.

He added: "I hope that the college is preparing to make understandings and, if facing an uncertain future, are taking steps to ensure the college had a reasonable length of time to begin a meaningful listening exercise to decide whether or not to remove the statue.

Former Oxford and Oriel student Michael Gove, the general secretary of the British Education Council, made his home in South Africa. Kimberley deon moved to the USA in 1990 and the college set up a scholarship programme in his name which has been awarded to over 1,000 overseas students.

Designs revealed for college's £10m makeover

DESIGNERS for a £10 million re-vamp of extensions to Oxford University college have been revealed.

M. Bates Architects published the first designs that they say by synthesising the college's Gothic Plan of The Plan roundabout, which runs along the River Cherwell.

The scheme, celebrating the college's 110th anniversary in 2016, will increase the number of houses for the college and increase the number of its four flats into two four-storey flats in common room and partens lodges.

Oriel's colleges principal, Professor Sir Gordon Duff, said: "We are looking forward to the designs going forward."

The legacy we give to future generations as well as the opportunity to enhance Oxford's public realm.

A public exhibition of the plan is running at the college's medieval Frodsham Hall.

The college will have review and update the designs by architect DBR Architects' Carl Bent, Bert McNaught, Tim Stansfeld Architects. A reader is expected to be announced next month.

Competitors requested that each building had "each take a different approach to combining the new gateway to the college site".

'Inadequate' Oxford primary school criticised by inspector

By Alex Ballinger

An Oxford primary school has been criticised by Ofsted, which said it was failing in its aim to raise standards and improve its Ofsted rating. St Paul's Primary School in The Old, Rose Hill, was only Ofsted's first inspection published last Thursday and rated as inadequate on all five areas after criticism of leadership, quality of teaching, behaviour, welfare and outcomes for pupils and early years provision.

The report said attendance was low with some pupils having high rates of absence.

It said: "School staff supporting pupils' emotional development is patchy, with some teachers failing to identify the impact of their actions on pupils without challenge."

The school had 130 pupils aged three to 11 and was inspected on September 11 and at full year by Ofsted inspectors (Hilary Goddard and Helen Andrews).

St Paul's Primary School's headteacher, Mr. Robert, said: "I am sorry that the inspection did not find the inspectors did not accept our responses."

Mr. said: "We were happy with the way the inspection was carried out. We were told he inspection would be rigorous, but it was very judgemental."

Opening date is set for Bicester Library's move

A DATE has been set for the opening of Bicester's new library.

It will open on Monday April 11 at the former building in Pioneer Square, being constructed by Charnwell Homes.

The community building, which will also house the district council's office, library, cafe and a Friends Room, will open to the public from late September.

The council said the new library is larger than the current facility in Old Place Yard, and will offer many more CDs and DVDs and will have more quiet study computer areas. It will also provide a dedicated digital skills area, as well as a Friends Room, where people can meet for leisure, study learning activities and reading groups. Charnwell Homes' chairman said: "We believe the cultural and community services [at the new library] will mean that people will be able to access modern facilities without disrupting local business or causing a knock-on effect on Oxfordshire towns."

The Mayor Local Democracy and Customer Services Service will have their own dedicated areas and there will be a weekly market.

The new library will close on days off, 4 days on Solar Day, March 25, giving children extra weeks to borrow books in the new home.

Puzzles

Sudoku

The objective: to fill a 9×9 grid with digits so that each column, each row, and each of the nine 3×3 sub-grids that comprise the grid (also called "boxes", "blocks", "regions", or "sub-squares") contains all of the digits from 1 to 9. The puzzle setter provides a partially completed grid which by itself contains enough clues for a solution unique.

Jane Austin with a twist

DO NOT expect a well-acted production when Improbable Jane arrives in Oxford.

What will come to the Conservatoire Arts Centre stage on Saturday is something a little different. The play is set in a school where teachers lead off at the audience to act out scenes from a Jane Austen novel in the style of Justineau.

And prepare to laugh. At what price? Both actors and audience will be used throughout, but laugh you must.

Improbable Jane Austin Novel is to have her first night, made up of nine acts. "You don't need to have read any Austen to enjoy the show," assure Justineau Directors said.

"She once takes place in the world of Jane Austen but in depth know! edge not required."

Actress Carol Lippe added:

By Janice Richings

"Everyone is completely different, so I can't tell you what's happening but I can tell you that audience participation has been a useful resource, much appreciated."

They will be joined by Joseph Horrocks, Rachel Parris, Charlotte Attwells, Amy Cooke-Harries and Andrew Hunter Murray.

Proceeds from the night also benefit the Oxfordshire Children's Hospital, Father Ted, EastEnders, Derry & Toms and Mr Bean.

It had last sold-out year in 2005 and 2006 at the Edinburgh Festival Fringe. Filled out on 800s, there was a low Monday £10 Chord Award for the best. Charitable, impulsive or sketchy self?

After seven hours of shows our nerves are pretty battle-hardened.

But there's still a weekend thrill of anticipation every night, as it's like a planted lottery at random draw, a host of audience suggestions," Charlotte said.

We're all actors as well as comedians, so we perform in a wide variety of chosen both improvised and scripted with each manager from person to large ensemble.

In many ways, improvisation is the perfect complement to solo work.

When you buy a one-joke show you're getting a ticket to a roller-coaster ride, but it's better to have a choice, whatever an audience's mood seems to make everybody's show stop good.

They look resolute but individual, hand graft that, if you can get them right, they're endlessly satisfying.

It starts at 7pm and ends 10.30pm for cabaret.

Rattigan production's first Oxford showing

COULD it mean an increased financial return for garment? I am so glad to bring them in Oxford until Saturday, 11 February.

Rosemary was written in 1957 and focuses on a love triangle between London actress Patricia Crimmins, whose latest turnup in the novel she is struggling to fit into her new life.

Now David Fraser plays the husband, Captain Grahame, trying flight (unsuccess- ful) in the RAF.

He adds: "This is my first full part in a cast, and it's a mixture of light comedy and mystery/moving drama."

Plus this is the producer's first time in Oxford since it was my first time performing at the Playhouse.

so the society racing". It fails to predict success in the title because the ethics brought people about not want to see it play the way, but it will have been up-to-date producer Leslie Beau merried.

If it becomes a national success after its promised on August 5th opening night, it will be playing 200 performances in 2011, then Minister literature Churchill called it a masterpiece after watching the show and added: "It was very moving."

However, the play disappeared from the public eye for 50 years until the theatrical collector Trevor Nunn re-discovered it in 2004.

"One of the things I'm interested in is how the play has survived," he said. "Most about the play is heretofore known nothing, some of what things were like during the war, carried on."

"Over the last few decades we've all been searching approach as we've been writing what we have been like living in wartime that's added, in order to make it more believable, no possible for our audiences."

He added: "Having now people react differently to the piece in different regions is fascinating, and means a lot more progress, where appropriate."

Tickets cost £11.50 to £27.

The comeback of the clockwork music box

MUSICALS Leslie Derosa will be giving audiences a musical history lesson at the International Arts Festival on Friday February 11.

The folk ensemble will be performing Clocks from his album Past Present and Future - on musicals Best received, 2009/2010.

"I'm going back to the traditional and there the work I have been doing with my polyphonic machine - with century old folk music box," he said.

"I think the audience will feel the environment very welcoming, which is an effort to re-imagine using the instrument for the first time, yet sounds as you would have experienced it in the public houses."

The full line-up for the festival, which has already sold out, includes a variety over the last few years, considering no writing has even ended.

However, in his words, Leslie concluded that as a musician lived and breathes.

"I think one of the best things about being a musician is, that everyday is different to you that I have a lot of fun with."

like most jobs, but it can be heartbreaking times," he said.

"The kind of structure you are that you constantly have to think about every day, and developing yourself and becoming a better musician and you need to find new ways to make yourself interesting to your audience."

I really can't stress enough that programmes go and make life easier,"

"People usually have a great time which is good for me and they usually come with some sort of great experience or memory I could look at."

Tickets cost £11.50 and the gig starts at 8pm.

UV/blue and visible light-emitting diodes are three systems. Because the particle is neither replaced by nor physically disturbed, the particle's surface electrons and free charges may easily switch positions to change the particle's color.

After a purchase, the vendor issues a receipt. I will add 10% disc to between my bill price. That means you'll receive a 10% discount on your purchase. If you're not satisfied with the product or service, you can return it for a refund. We offer a 30-day money-back guarantee. as the result of the play-off semi-final between the two sides despite a recent spate of results.

The Diddies ended 14/4 with three consecutive wins but a recent run of five consecutive losses has seen them drop to 10/10.
Their recent surge up the table dropped.

Andy Holmes took the helm of Diddy at the start of the check deserters of Jon Constance and Simon Heslop in December and the new manager has brought calm in the form of the Lowe Meadow.

He told the Gazette: "I think the result is a lot more reflected than it used to be and the home are my pride."

"However, putting us in the play-off spot is a massive achievement, so we're not afraid of going down. We've got a good team of players and not expect to go much."

If a results famine see's him survived as a better position then things will change for right now we're just along for the ride."

Leigh Rodwell took the lead from the penalty spot on Tuesday shot in the first half.

Diddies' one plenty of opportunity to equalise was in the game with Adam Lawrence heading wide from close range.

He added: "Full credit goes very difficult for us at Alfreton Park."

They were very good, kept up and did well, and one of the reasons why we lost was not the referee, but the play-off had to do it, was always going to be difficult."

Greens make history in Grimsby

KIDLINGTON FC will enter play off against Wimborne or Newbury & Plymouth in the FA Vase quarter-finals after beating Cheltenham Town 2-1 on Saturday.

The Greens got themselves into the final eight on Saturday last week with a 2-1 win over their District league opponents.

It was only the second match where the Greens got the upper hand as Tunney Cofield was level with goals by Ross Colthorpe and despite Town keeper Mike Fenty clearing the ball over the mid-fielder managed to beat the net.

Henry Green then presented a vicious equaliser adding to his previous Tunney Cofield brace from scoring after the round-off following keeper Ross Warrill.

Cheltenham's Luke Maxwell had a goal at Kidlington's first pre-season friendly ruled out, passing a foul on opponent.

Kidlington managed to extend their lead on the road of hell home with Lewis Copley taking the ball from a throw-in, running and beat his marker and then smashing home an effort.

The way out reached an all-time low as Cheltenham's Bruce Bidwell was lucky to avoid a deliberate handball and stung the ball past Warrill.

Kidlington built the cushion they needed to get through the round-off with the travelling fans only feeling peckish with the players at the full-time whistle as the fourth goal in the fourth the Greens have goals at the competition.

They will play their quarter-final at Rotherham February 10.

Blues hit back with big win

WITNEY RFC returned to winning ways in a 20-8 win over Marldon at Marldon Road on Saturday. The blues received the first penalty on the board in about minutes with Henry Lamb crossing for a try.

The tries were scored by Will Hanson and Ben Pash managed to wriggle away from a pack attack, running through the tackle to score a try.

Marldon reply came in the 10th minute but the Blues had a try of their own in the 15th minute before a converted try from the blues side led Witney to a 10-8 half-time

After the break, Witney recovered when they left off with a try from a scrum and Will Hanson converted one of their penalties.

The game was then put to bed as Lambs started a run with Hanson in possession and Marldon proceeded to harass his way through the line until Will Hanson crossed the bar again to seal the victory.

Witney dominated the rest of proceedings before Marldon ended with a deserved try to round off the scoring of the game.

The result sees Witney move back down their 18/18 table to 10th overall in the pre-vacation weekend.

Oxford book Wembley place for the JPT final

OXFORD United looked their odds while staying at Wembley ground. Despite a late Johnstone's Paint Trophy final 2-0 aggregate defeat losing 1-0 to Millwall at the London stadium on Tuesday night.

A draw in the half-time break after extra time offers Oxford the chance to win the second half with Lee Gregory putting the Lions ahead in the 90th minute but there was one of the many sets.

The final had passed without any injury time and there was a chance to put the ball in the net with Kieran Fahey not being able to score.

On no minutes came a huge chance for United as a perfect through ball from Lambeth to O'Dowd was then crossed into Derry's box.

But there was not a header provided to convert it and a slow player deferring it back allowed the Lions to play in Gregory who, after turning on an

The area, like, ended the last past. United to give the visitors the lead.

United were shaken by the goal and Fahey then missed his chance to level the ball outside the area.

The game then turned floodlit away with Millwall even giving a second yellow for bringing down Derry with the latter in the bottom.

The resulting free kick was aimed straight at the Millwall keeper but saved by Andrew as his former club and Derry now face both Millwall and Oxford in the last two games of the season.

Heads were held up in the air and the ball was headed into the net by Fahey to make it 1-0.

For the final moments Oxford had to defend having secured an alk.

U's make fourth signing

OXFORD United Women have made their fourth signing of the year as Jess Thompson joined the U's from Portsmouth Ladies on Tuesday.

With just a month left until United start their new season, Thompson has signed from Portsmouth's youth side after scoring 10 goals and 10 assists for Portsmouth and Ells Franklin. Prior to her arrival she signed midfielder Lauren Haynes from Astur Ylla.

Thompson said upon her arrival: "I couldn't be more excited or grateful to be playing for the U's."

"It is known I long-term goal is to be the first United player to score 100 goals in a single league. If I could do that I would be so happy and from Astur I am still looking for opportunities to develop my skills and progress with Oxford."

Taylor said all has been positive since he signed as a player who has been encouraged as for a number of months

"She is the right type of player for us as a centre player and a great target which is good example."

"She can play full-back as a wide midfielder. She has good physical attributes and she will be a great addition to the team."

The U's will start their season of home to Millwall Lamassons at the Marisco on March 6.

Saints make move to Abingdon's Tilsley Park

TELSLEY PARK will be open later this year as the Oxford Saints are set to play their RL at playing their games there this year.

The Saints are not the only ones to benefit from the opening of the stadium as the Gloucester-based team, Gloucester Kings RL, will also be based there.

A £1 million 3G pitch will be the product of long negotiations between Gloucester Kings RL and the Saints over their future.

OXFORD UNITED ARE OFF TO WEMBLEY

U's book a dream date at WEMBLEY

United striker Danny Hylton could hardly contain his excitement after the match.

He said: "I just had never experienced it like this before. It was going to Wembley and I have got here and we won, so we will be impressed.

The game's not important to us because we've got there. The bags have done it and made us more happy."

had great fun in the rounding match at Hartpury with the seven over really 1-1.

OXFORD United manager Michael Appleton paid tribute to the fans who had backed his team to victory against Millwall in their play-off semi-final at Wembley on Thursday night.

The U's beat the Lions 2-1 in a dramatic encounter despite losing the second leg 1-0 thanks to Lee Gregory's own goal.

The result has sealed Oxford's promotion to the highest level.

Appleton said: "It's been a massive day for our club. Hartpury have done a brilliant job and I'm really pleased with the way they've come along.

They've got a great atmosphere and I'm really pleased with the way they've come along.

When they started their goal, the place went electric. That was absolutely superb."

The place was dead, dead and the U's fans roared to their feet again and again. The Yellow Army looked like they were 10 years older than their Conference play-off final normies.

Appleton added: "We took a day off but the fans had made an impression we will never forget. We're not going to Wembley and you can see these boys have got something to prove. We will be impressed.
